Mini track on International Governance in the Era of Information Warfare

Track chair:

Dr. Julie Ryan

The use of information warfare techniques is presenting numerous technical challenges to governments, militaries, and companies. But it is also posing non-technical challenges in areas such as law, policies, and diplomacies. This mini-track is focused on these non-technical issues with particular focus on international affairs, the laws of war, and diplomacy. To submit an abstract/paper for this mini track, please read the submission details on the call for papers page.

Topics of particular interest include:

- The laws of armed conflict and cyber-warfare
- The role of multinational corporations in cyber-warfare
- Corporate governance and policy regarding cyber-warfare
- The use of cyberspace for diplomatic or aggressive purposes
- Jurisdictional disputes in cyberspace
- Terroristic use of cyberspace and appropriate reactions
