Mini Track on Violence against Different Genders

Mini Track Chair: Assist. Prof. Dr. Nuran Öze, Arkin University of Creative Art and Design, Cyprus

This mini track will focus on 'Violence against Different Genders'. The term "gender violence" reflects the idea that violence often serves to maintain structural gender inequalities, and includes all types of violence against men, women, children, adolescents, gay, transgender people and gender non-conforming.

Patriarchal structure generally views men as the centre and categorizes other genders as "others" or marginalised. However, this does not mean that men do not face violence from other genders at all. Neither is this issue directly related with biological sex (assigned from birth), it is in deeply aligned to gender which is socially constructed. We should regard this issue as not limited to only men and women, but to include the fullgender spectrum and the LGBTI community as well. In addition to this violence cannot be limited to physical acts, violence can be psychological (emotional), economic or social.

Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Violence against different genders: physical, psychological (emotional), economic and social
- Violence against different genders in the workplace
- Covid-19 and gender differences in treatment (physical, psychological (emotional), economic and social) during this crisis period
- Gender inequalities in managerial positions as a form of violence
- Bullying between different genders on social media platforms
- Gender inequalities and its' relations with violence
- Issues relating to domestic violence (physical, psychological (emotional), economic and social)
