Mini Track on Government Support of Entrepreneurship

Chair: Dr. Sergei Polbitsyn, Ural Federal University, Russia

In these times more than ever, Governments from around the world are looking for ways to boost their economies and help their countries grow. Governments have been announcing the full support of entrepreneurship as the tool to provide the social and economic stability of their populations. However social policy on entrepreneurship support is not as efficient as it is supposed to be. There are many flaws including issues with implementation, infrastructure. The track is dedicated to the discussion of social policy problems on entrepreneurship support affecting both economic and social subsystems of the society. We are also looking for discussion on policy which has been successful, case studies are welcomed.

Suggested topics include but are not limited to:

- social policy on entrepreneurship
- support of entrepreneurship
- social responsibility of entrepreneurs
- social efficiency of entrepreneurship
- encouraging minority entrepreneurs
- entrepreneurial ecosystem

Sergei Polbitsyn is the Professor of Innovation Management and Entrepreneurship at the Ural Federal University. He is also a senior researcher at the Institute of Economy of the Ural Chapter of Russian Academy of Sciences. His research interests include entrepreneurial ecosystems, innovation policies and systems, social and economic development of rural communities.
