Mini Track on Gender Equality and Feminism in Society

Mini Track Chair: Dr Rafidah Abd Karim, Universiti Teknologi MARA, Malaysia

This track focuses on gender equality and feminism in society. Gender equality is when people of all genders have equal rights, responsibilities and opportunities. On the other hand, feminism can be seen as a movement to put an end to sexism, sexist exploitation, and oppression and to achieve full gender equality in law and in practice. It impacts people of all ages and backgrounds. A great many feminists seek some degree of equality between the genders in both the public and private sphere. Therefore, this track will explore five major topics which bring together the gender equality and society, gender equality and feminism in society, women empowerment and gender equality and feminism in indigenous society. This track offers an opportunity for academics, practitioners, consultants, and activists from around the world who are involved in the gender equality and society, women studies, feminism, gender and indigenous studies and the public and private sector and in gender studies to come together and exchange ideas. It is subsequently critical to encourage and expand research on this specific track concerns to acquire a better knowledge and significant insights on gender equality and feminism in society. Topics welcomed for inclusion in the mini track include and are not limited to:

- Gender Equality and Women's Right in Society
- Gender Equality, Feminism and Indigenous Society
- Gender Equality and Women Empowerment in Society
- Gender Equality and Feminism in Modern Society
- Feminism and Women's Right Movements in Society
